

I'm very concerned that Sinclair Broadcasting is violating federal law and the public trust by engaging in electioneering activities. Can they really force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election?

It makes me very worried about the media consolidation we are increasingly seeing in this country. A democracy just cannot work without a free and diversified press.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. I don't think campaign smear is in the public interest. Real news about the issues of campaign is definitely in the public interest.

Thank you.
